

SEMINAR: Executive Briefing: The Effects of Cloud Computing on Your Business

April 3, 2012

How do business challenges differ from the more commonly discussed technology challenges? Is it possible to quickly bring new business initiatives online through the cloud while decommissioning unprofitable ones? When "cloud" computing began more than 30 years ago, building a server or network for a business application provided a real competitive edge. Does the same potential exist today through modern cloud technology? Corporate and Business attorney Steve Bonafonte participated in a panel discussion presented by Walker Systems Support answering all of these questions and more.
