

IN THE NEWS: Attorney George Kasper Comments on Workplace Wellness Programs

September 20, 2010

The Modesto Bee

Pullman & Comley Employee Benefits attorney George J. Kasper was quoted in an article, "Making Workplace Wellness Programs Work," in the nationally syndicated "Workwise" column by Dr. Mildred L. Culp, about what employers can do to design a workplace wellness program that cuts costs and makes their employees more healthy.

According to George, there is a lot of negative information out there that leads some companies either "not to adopt wellness programs or delay a decision." He suggests that employers without a program could consider employee assistance programs or other low-cost alternatives with a health component.

To read the full article on the Modesto Bee website, please click here.

Professionals

George J. Kasper

Practice Areas

Employee Benefits