Hartford Courant

Megan Youngling Carannante, co-chair of Pullman & Comley's Labor, Employment Law & Employee Benefits practice, was interviewed on the reopening of Connecticut's economy on May 20 amidst a sea of new guidance and laws.

Megan explained "The idea is to get back to work while obviously putting safety first, and that's the balance employers and employees will have to [strike,]" although many employers are still unsure how to navigate federal and state guidelines, interpret new medical findings on the coronavirus, and how to deal with specific concerns by individual employees.
