

Moe Banks Talks About Charitable Lead Trusts

September 2011

Giving Advice: A Resource For Professional Advisors

Pullman & Comley attorney Morris W. Banks was interviewed in the September 2011 issue of the Hartford Foundation for Public Giving's publication, Giving Advice: A Resource for Professional Advisors.

In an article entitled, "Giving Today and Providing for Tomorrow: How your clients can accomplish current charitable goals and take care of the next generation," Moe talks about how charitable lead trusts can be used to provide long-term estate tax benefits and leave a lasting legacy.

To read the full article please click here, or link to the Hartford Foundation for Public Giving's website here.

Professionals

Morris W. Banks

Practice Areas

Trusts and Estates