In "Plainfield Planning Own Tax Sale," reporter Don Bond writes about the town of Plainfield's effort to recoup unpaid taxes. Plainfield has hired Pullman & Comley attorney Adam J. Cohen to handle the collections.

According to the article, Plainfield Tax Collector Nadine Hoyt had heard about Adam's success in the neighboring town of Sterling.

"I had heard about (Cohen) from other tax collectors who have used his services and raved about his work," Hoyt said. "I attended one of the auctions in Sterling and was impressed. That's when I contacted him about handling our delinquent tax accounts.' "
